I, and contains grants by Hen. II; John, when earl Morton and also when king; by Hen. III. and Edw. I. The words "Antiquissime littere patentes & Concessionnes" appear at the heading, in the hand-writing of the time of James I; at which period it is evident it was considered the most ancient roll in this office. It contains sixty two inrolments, some of which are defaced, and the first membrane is much torn.'	—

¹ Eight membranes (6 + 2) of the so-called Antiquissime roll were extant in 1828: six in RCI roll §1 and two more calendared in RCH as Rotulus Patens de anno 11 Edw. II. 2^a pars (=RCI roll §9).

² The 'general observations' of 1819 state that RCI roll §4 consisted of 3 membranes; the 'catalogue' in RCH records 4 membranes.

⁴ RCI roll §7 is a controlment roll. These were normally written on one side only; this roll contains a single item on the dorso (RCH, p. 21, no. 33), namely an enrolment of an indenture of receipt for money received by the treasurer as a loan from John Darcy.

⁶ James F. Ferguson, "The "mere English" and the "mere Irish" ", Transactions of the Kilkenny Archaeological Society, 1 (1849–51), p. 508.

⁸ Edward II abdicated on 20 Jan. 1327, but the Irish chancery did not stop dating letters in his name until May 1327.

⁹ RCH records (p. 37) that the start of this roll had perished by 1828. In total it gives a calendar for 144 numbered items for this roll, but nos. 9–10, 14–15, and 142–4 are listed as being illegible, while portions of several others had perished by 1828 (e.g., nos. 16, 17, 84, 90, 126). RCH also records that a part of the membrane at the start of the dorso had been ripped away ('Quedam hinc avulsa'). All this makes sense of the statement in the 'general observations' of 1819 that the roll consisted of '136 legible inrolments'. RCH, p. 37, no. 2 is an undated writ to have '6 balistas cum apparatu pro garnestura Viridis Castr'. RCH does not include an address clause, but from the 'general observations' of 1819 it appears that the addressee was 'John de Mauncestre'.

¹⁰ A total of 3 membranes (2 + 1) from Patent Roll 11 Edward III were extant in 1828, two in RCI roll §17 and a single membrane in RCI roll §18.

¹¹ RCH (pp 43, 48) records that both the start and end of this roll were truncated. The items described in the ‘general observations’ of 1819 as ‘partly destroyed’ were the first four enrolments on the dorso of the roll (RCH, p. 46, nos. 106–9).

¹³ RCI roll §22 was not a chancery roll and is not calendared in RCH. The pre-1922 PROI Chancery Finding Aids, vol. 1, lists it as an 'Exchequer Account Roll'. Its location in the record treasury was 3D.11a.1.

¹⁴ RCH records (p. 55) that only an occasional word was legible from nos. 39–40 to the end of the roll.

¹⁵ RCI roll §24 does not appear in RCH. The pre-1922 PROI Chancery Finding Aids, vol. 1, lists it as an 'Exchequer Account Roll'. Its location in the record treasury was 3D.11a.2.

¹⁶ The two articles listed in the 'general observations' of 1819 as being the first items in RCI roll §25 (i.e. letters concerning Simon Ruly and Robert Babe respectively) are recorded in RCH as being on the dorso of that roll (p. 57, nos. 128–9); they occur immediately after two illegible items (RCH, p. 57, nos. 126–7) which may suggest that they were the first legible items on a new membrane.

Wm de Karlell, breve. —2. [sic] Ric' Walsh, id.'	—

¹⁸ The discrepancy in the number of enrolments recorded here is presumably the result of the large number of illegible and near-illegible items on the roll.

²¹ RCH records that the first two items on the dorso of this roll (p. 101, nos. 64–5) were so obliterated and damaged that they were illegible in 1828. Edward III died on 21 June 1377, but the Irish chancery did not stop enrolling letters in his name until July.

²³ RCH records that the first two items on the dorso were illegible in 1828 (p. 117, nos. 67–8).

²⁴ RCI roll §41 is entitled Rotulus Patens de anno 5 Ric. II. 1^a pars, but it was the only portion of Patent Roll 5 Richard II extant in 1828. RCI roll §42, described as the second part of this patent roll, was in fact a close roll.

²⁷ RCH records that the first two articles on the dorso were so rubbed that they were illegible by 1828 (p. 126, nos. 193–4).

²⁸ RCH records that the end of the roll was damaged by obliterations (p. 130).

²⁹ Letters in this year were issued in the name of the marquis of Dublin, Robert de Vere.

³⁰ The reference in the 'general observations' of 1819 to the 'first entry on the front of the second membrane' refers to an inspeximus of letters patent of Robert de Vere, marquis of Dublin, dated 26 Oct. [1387] 11 Richard II (=RCH, p. 138, no. 35). From this we may infer that the first membrane of RCI roll §49 contained 34 enrolments.

³¹ RCH records (p. 149) that this roll was badly torn.

³² RCH records that the beginning of Patent 18 Richard II was missing in 1828 (p. 151). The '[murage] charter for Kinsale', listed as the first legible item in the 'general observations' of 1819, is the second entry in RCH (p.151, no. 2).

³⁴ RCH records that the first item on this membrane was illegible by 1828 due to wear and tear (p. 158, no. 1). Consequently, the article given in the 'general observations' of 1819 as the first legible item on the roll (concerning Thomas de Everdun) is the second item in RCH (p. 158, no. 2).

³⁵ This seems to be an estreat roll; there is a considerable overlap between the contents of this roll and those of RCI rolls §63 and §64.

³⁷ A total of 10 membranes (8 + 2) from Patent Roll 5 Henry IV were extant in 1828, eight in RCI roll §65 and two in RCI roll §66.

³⁸ A total of 4 membranes (3 + 1) from Patent Roll 6 Henry IV were extant in 1828. Four were in RCI roll §67 and a single detached membrane comprised RCI roll §68.

⁴⁷ RCH records that the lower portion of RCI roll §85 seemed to have been ripped and torn away, and that possibly many articles were destroyed as a consequence (p. 214).

⁵⁰ The article listed in the 'general observations' of 1819 as being the first legible item on this roll (concerning Philip Wyot) is RCH, p. 217b, no. 2 (in Rotulus Patens de anno 9 Hen. V.). RCH notes the existence of an illegible item at the start of the dorso of this roll (ibid., p. 220).

⁵² RCH records (p. 226) that the first four items had been obliterated by 1828. The articles listed in the 'general observations' of 1819 as being the first and second on this roll (concerning John son of Lucas Netterville and Henry Saundyr) are calendared as RCH, p. 226, nos. 5 and 7 respectively.

⁵⁴ RCH (p. 239) begins with a note to the effect that this roll was the most severely mutilated of all those discovered in the archive [Lat. in chartophylacio]. The editors continue: 'We have sought to discover the sense so far as we were able; and if success was often wanting, effort most certainly was not'. The roll ends with an editorial note: 'The rest is wanting'.

⁵⁵ The 'general observations' of 1819 record four membranes, the first of which was damaged; RCH records that there were five membranes extant.

⁵⁶ RCH (p. 242) records that the start of this roll had perished by 1828. ‘The remainder begins with the remnants of two articles, from which nothing could be gleaned. The subsequent articles are numbered in the margin Nos. 1, 2 etc., from which it is to be assumed that the lost articles were not numbered’.

⁵⁷ A total of 6 membranes (4 + 1 + 1) from Patent Roll 9 Henry VI were extant in 1828. The pre-1922 PROI Chancery Finding Aids, vol. 1, lists three patent rolls under this regnal year. These are RCI roll §103 (4 membranes); and two further fragments each only one membrane in length (RCI rolls §§104–105). The third of these (§105) is not calendared as a separate roll in RCH; rather §103 and §105 are calendared together under the title Rotulus Patens de anno 9 Hen. VI. 1^a pars (i.e. RCI roll §103). A pencil annotation in the pre-1922 PROI Chancery Finding Aids records that RCI roll §103 comprised items 1–19 and 27–31; RCI roll §105 comprised items 20–26. This is consistent with the ‘general observations’ of 1819, which lists the first legible item on RCI roll §105 as a grant to John Darcy; this grant is RCH, p. 250, no. 20, which comes immediately after an editorial note to the effect that the first two articles on this membrane had perished and a third had suffered a great deal.

⁵⁸ RCI roll §105 is calendared in RCH, p. 250, nos. 20–26. For details, see previous note.

⁵⁹ RCH records (p. 265) that this roll was endorsed as follows: ‘Transcript of the writs of Nicholas Strangways, chief chamberlain of the exchequer of Ireland in the time of Giles Thorndon, treasurer of Ireland.’

⁶³ RCH records (p. 269) that nothing useful was to be gleaned from the two surviving membranes of this roll because they were so rubbed and obliterated.
